

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method detects an uplink error during the transmission of visual data in a mobile communication system. When such an error is detected in data which has passed an uplink radio section, a specific CRC code causing a 'CRC fail' is inserted into a corresponding data block. Accordingly, an error detection available region can be extended and a picture quality of a mobile image of a mobile communication terminal can be substantially improved.